The findings, results, and conclusions in this final report are the product of the hundreds of participants from state, county, and local governments, from educational institutions and schools, from non-profit agencies and religious institutions, from unions and community organizations, from business owners and ethnic chambers of commerce, and from immigrants and US-born citizens. It is hoped that this final report will serve as a blueprint for discussion and action for improving the lives of immigrants in Santa Clara County at the beginning of the 21st century.
